By providing my signature below, I acknowledge my and the coauthors acceptance to and/or certification of the following:

Copyright Transfer. The Author(s) hereby assign and transfer to the Publisher, the Canadian Association of Naturopathic Doctors (CAND), all rights, title, interest, and copyright ownership in said Manuscript. The rights assigned to the CAND include (but are not limited to) the rights to edit, publish, reproduce, distribute copies, prepare derivative works, include in indexes, or search databases in print, electronic, or other media, (whether or not they are used when this agreement is executed), and claim copyright in this work throughout the world for as long as it is copyrighted, including renewals or extensions.

Authorship Responsibilities. The Author(s) warrant and represent that (1) they are the sole author(s) and sole owner(s) of the copyright in the Manuscript, and have not previously assigned copyright or granted a license to any other third party, (2) the Author who has signed this Agreement has full right, power and authority to enter into this Agreement on behalf of all of the Authors, (3) this manuscript, in its entirety, is original and none of the material in the manuscript has been previously published, is included in another manuscript, or is currently under consideration for publication elsewhere, (4) any reference to or use of previously published material is explicitly acknowledged in the manuscript and the authors have obtained permissions where necessary, and these permissions are attached to this agreement; and (5) nothing in the Manuscript is obscene, defamatory, libelous, violates any privacy rights, infringes any intellectual property rights, or any other human, personal or other rights of any third party.

Conflicts of Interest. All possible conflicts of interest, financial or otherwise, including direct or indirect financial or personal relationships, interests, and affiliations, whether directly related to the subject of the paper, are listed for all Authors in the Manuscript. Disclosure includes, but is not limited to, grants or research funding, employment, affiliations, patents (in preparation, filed, or granted), inventions, speakers' bureaus, honoraria, consultancies, royalties, stock options/ownership, or paid expert testimony. If an author has no conflicts of interest to declare, this must be explicitly stated.

Author Rights. Authors are granted specific rights for a large number of author uses, which are granted and permitted without the need to obtain specific permission from the copyright holder (CAND, candj@cand.ca). The article must be properly cited (i.e., author name(s), title, DOI, journal name, copyright year, volume number, inclusive pages, and copyright holder). These author rights are granted and apply only to articles for which you are named as the author or co-author. The Author rights include (1) the right to reuse figures or tables created by the authors and contained in the article in other works created by them, provided it is not for commercial use; (2) the right to include the article in full or in part in a thesis or dissertation, provided that this not published commercially; (3) the right to make copies of the article for the author's personal use (non-commercial and non-profit), including distributing copies for their own teaching use; (4) the right to reproduce, and permit any academic institution where an author works at the time, to reproduce and distribute copies of the article for the purpose of teaching; (5) the right to make copies and distribute copies of the article to research colleagues, for the personal use by such colleagues (but not commercially or mass distribution (e.g. Email list)); (6) patent and trademark rights and rights to any process or procedure described in the article; (7) the right to use the article or any part thereof in a printed compilation of works of the author, such as collected writings or lecture notes (following publication of the article in the Journal and provided that it is not for commercial use); and (8) the right to reuse portions or excerpts in other works provided there is full acknowledgment of its original publication. Permission requests not outlined must be directed to the CAND (candj@cand.ca).

Rights of Indigenous Authors and Communities. CANDJ recognizes that Indigenous authors and communities have the right to ownership, control, access, and possession over data collection processes and research conducted in their communities, and how this information is stored, interpreted, used, or shared, as recognized by the First Nations principles of OCAP®, a registered trademark of the First Nations Information Governance Centre (FNIGC), and the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP). Indigenous authors and relevant communities retain ownership, control, access, and possession of their related cultural knowledge, data, and information, provided there is full acknowledgment of its original publication in CANDJ.

Self-Archiving Policy. Authors are permitted to self-archive the accepted manuscript (the version post-peer review, but prior to copyediting and typesetting) on their own personal website and/or in their funder or institutional repositories, and/or not for profit subject-based repositories such as PubMed Central, for public release 12 months after first publication. Authors must cite the publication reference and full DOI number on the first page of any deposited version and provide a link from it to the URL of the published article on the journal's website. Please note that the accepted manuscript may not be released under a Creative Commons license.
