Naturopathic Doctors

Media Kit

January 2022

Reach 80%* of Canada's naturopathic doctors, allied health care professionals and the public

Historically the CAND's publications, the Vital Link a peer reviewed print journal and, the E-Link, a monthly electronic newsletter have the widest circulation to Canadian NDs of any naturopathic publications. The Vital Link has now transitioned to the online CAND Journal (CANDJ).

The CAND Journal (CANDJ) is the official peer reviewed publication of the Canadian Association of Naturopathic Doctors (CAND). Published online four times per year, in March, June, September and December, the CANDJ's mission is to connect the evidence-informed best practices of the naturopathic profession to members, health care practitioners (integrative and conventional) health care stakeholders, government, and the general public.

The CANDJ provides advertisers with cost-effective marketing to 80%* of Canada's NDs, in addition to the groups noted above putting your products front-and-centre with a broad range of potential clients. The CANDJ website and articles will be searchable through Google, increasing the number of website visitors both nationally and internationally. As an online journal, the CANDJ frees advertisers to choose when and how long to post an ad, with options for 3, 6 and 12 months as opposed to being restricted to a limited per issue print publication. We invite you to advertise and benefit from this broadened reach.

Circulation:

- Available to over 2,300 CAND members across Canada as well as the global naturopathic profession
- Available to 500 ND-students enrolled in accredited naturopathic medical programs
- Accessible to allied and integrative health care practitioners, government, researchers and the general public

Stay connected with NDs while showing your support

Invest as an advertising partner and enjoy unequalled exposure to NDs and other allied health care professionals while demonstrating your support of the Canadian Association of Naturopathic Doctors and the naturopathic profession across Canada. Please see the following pages for rates and further details.

*CAND professional membership consists of approximately 80% of all qualified NDs in Canada as verified by the national database
